HIS
Majesties Message, to the Lords House, by the Lord-Keeper.

His Majesty was expected at the Lords House on Friday last, and great preparation was made for his coming; but because he came not, it pleased his Majesty to send a Message by the Lord-Keeper, as followeth.

THat his Majesty thought it fitting, that the Trayned bands should be discharged, having long attended on both houses: not onely in respect that it was a great burden unto them, but also that he hoped, that there was no cause of danger, which might require their attendance any longer.

When the Lords had received this Message, they sent word thereof to the House of Commons.

The Answer of the House of Commons.

The House of Commons returned a Message to the Lords, desiring them to joine with them in petitioning to his Majesty, that they might be continued for some few dayes longer, till the affaires of the House were better settled.

The Lords joyned with them, and sent to his Majesty to Hampton Court, to move him therein.

They who carryed the Message to the King, were the Earle of Warwicke, and the Earle of Brisfow.

His

His Maiesties Answer,

THe Lords brought this Answer from His Majesty, that he was pleased that the Trayned Bands should be continued for foure or five dayes longer; till such time as the House of Commons had delivered up their Reasons, for longer continuance of them: and that on Tuesday next, he would be there himselfe, and then receiue them.

Die Saturni. Novemb. 27. 1641.

An Order for the recalling of the Trayned Bands to their daily Attendance againe.

To the Captaines of the Courte of Guard.

THis is to require and command your Attendance, as formerly, till further Order shall be by his Maiesty, and the House taken therein.

FINIS.
